VINEYARDS OF THE EOLA-AMITY HILLS
The Willamette Valley is not only beautiful, it is one of the few places on earth where Pinot noir can perfectly ripen and produce wines of exquisite quality. This demanding grape requires a precise balance of warm days, cool nights, exposure, and soil to achieve greatness. It also requires careful nurturing in the vineyards and a careful handling during its transformation into wine.

Each of the AVAs of the Willamette Valley has its own personality. Each macro-climate creates a specific expression, on the grapes and in the wines. We invite you to the Eola-Amity Hills AVA to explore how our unique conditions affect our grapes and our wines.

You can walk the vineyards, look into the soil, meet the grape growers who spend months nurturing this finicky plant and spend time with award-winning winemakers to learn how they meet the challenge of site and vintage.

The Eola-Amity Hills is distinctly different than the other AVAs. The balance of warm days and rapid cooling at night from the ocean winds that blow in through the Van Duzer Corridor create a different balance in our fruit. Our soils are also different, usually thinner with both sedimentary and volcanic sites. This results in a different balance in the Eola-Amity Hills wines: a bit more acidity, a bit more structure, and sometimes a bit more of a darker and edgier personality. In short, it means Pinot noir that we are very proud to produce. Thank you for the opportunity to share our story and our wines.
1976
The first winery in the region was bonded in 1976 by Myron Redford and Janis Checchia who purchased Amity Vineyards in 1974. Bethel Heights began in 1977, followed by Stangeland in 1978 and Hidden Springs in 1980. Vic Winquist and Ron Seely had the foresight to develop Seven Springs, Temperance Hill, and Witness Tree vineyards, and plantings were begun at what are now Canary Hill, Elton Vineyards, Orchard Heights and Zenith Vineyard.

1984
The Willamette Valley was defined by the government as an American Viticultural Area (AVA). By this time 273 acres were under vine in the Eola-Amity Hills with four wineries in operation.

1985
A group of wineries and vineyards, led by Tom Dumm, founder of Glen Creek Winery, now known as Orchard Heights Winery, set out to define their region. They formed the Eola Hills Winegrowing Region.

2006
Six additional regions within the Willamette Valley received federal approval as new AVAs in 2005 and 2006, including the Eola-Amity Hills AVA in 2006. These were determined by unique soil and climate attributes.

PRESENT
Today, the Eola-Amity Hills provides ultra-premium grapes for Pinot noir sold by scores of wineries throughout the Willamette Valley and beyond. Within the appellation, over 3,000 acres are planted and 30 commercial wineries are now producing wine.

1800s
Early pioneers named a village Eola in tribute to the powerful, predictable marine winds that blew through the Van Duzer Corridor. "Eola" is derived from Aeolus, the Greek deity otherwise known as "keeper of the winds."

1933
Almost at the moment Prohibition was repealed, the Honeywood Winery began operating in Salem in late 1933. It has been operating continuously ever since.

1960s

SOIL

Thin, volcanic clay soils from ancient lava flows are the most common soil type in these hills. But it’s not unusual to find outcroppings of other soil types here and there, created by eons of violent geological activity. Ancient marine sediments from the bottom of the ocean, and young flood sediments from the last Ice Age can be found intermittently throughout the appellation.

The predominant volcanic soils of the Eola-Amity Hills are generally shallower and rockier than those of other Willamette Valley AVAs, with significant effects on vine and fruit development and balance. These thin soils also drain quickly after rain, allowing fruit to hang on the vines long into the fall for maximum flavor development.

- Marine sediments were laid down on the floor of the Pacific Ocean. Examples: Willakenzie, Bellpine, Chehulpum, Hazelair, Melbourne, Dupee.
- Volcanic Basalts originated as lava flows from eastern Oregon. Examples: Jory, Nekia, Ritner, Saum, Witzel, Yamhill.
- Ice Age Loess is silt blown up from the valley floor onto northeast-facing hillsides. Example: Laurelwood.
- Missoula Flood deposits brought down the Columbia Gorge as the result of a repeatedly melting glacial dam. Examples: Wapato, Woodburn, Willamette, Concord, Helvetia, Helmick, Dayton.

CLIMATE

The Climate of the Eola-Amity Hills is defined by the Van Duzer Corridor, a break in the Coast Range that allows cool ocean winds to flow, dropping temperatures dramatically, especially during late summer afternoons. These late afternoon and evening breezes help provide the cool nights that keep acids firm and are essential for optimal ripening. Because of the dominating effect of these marine winds on our climate, the Eola-Amity Hills generally experience cooler average temperatures during the growing season than other parts of the Willamette Valley.

HARDER LAND. HARDIER WINEMAKERS. HARDER-WORKING VINES.
WINERIES & TASTING ROOMS

Quietly rocking the world of Pinot noir.

When you’ve made the decision to spend your life making wine, you may think that you have an inkling of the difficulties it will present. Yet, when you’ve decided to make Pinot noir, with its hundreds of clones and fickle sensibilities, you better be passionate in your venture.

In your pursuit of world-class Pinot noir, it helps to be working with grapes from the Willamette Valley, and, if you’re truly fortunate, you might be working with grapes from the Eola-Amity Hills AVA where the ocean winds blow in through the Van Duzer Corridor and cause even the locals to keep their Pendleton blankets out well into July. This cool marine air makes the vines work harder and helps amplify Pinot’s lush and aromatic qualities.

But, despite the Eola-Amity Hills’ ideal location, rest assured that growing and making exceptional Pinot noir is a battle.

Do you pick your grapes early and count on a miracle in the barrel or do you wait longer for the fruit to further ripen and develop flavor yet risk autumn rains taking half of your crop? Both tough and delicate decisions.

Fortunately, the people who make wine here are as tough and stubborn as the vines themselves. They work hard, they take calculated risks, they suffer for their art, and as a result of it all, they make wines that have been rocking the world, quietly. Because, unless you’re a critic, you want to keep something this good a secret as long as you can.

Historically, Seven Springs Vineyard, first planted in 1983, has produced some of the finest grapes grown in the United States. Wine Spectator recognized the 2012 Evening Land Seven Springs La Source Pinot noir, rated 98 points, as the No. 3 wine of Wine Spectator's Top 100 Wines of 2015. This marks Evening Land's fourth inclusion in the prestigious Top 100.

Seven Springs Vineyard is dry-farmed using biodynamic practices, is LIVE certified and has been fully converted to organic and biodynamic farming practices since 2007. Taking advantage of the unique terroir, the vineyards potential is explored by mixing old vines and new plantings, blending distinct blocks, with micro-cuvées that lie on the volcanic soils in the heart of the Seven Springs hillside. Come see it all and taste why Seven Springs Vineyard is truly such a special place.

Regular Hours/Fees: Vineyard tastings by appointment.

Fossil & Fawn is just a few people (3 members of the Fischer family and one Mosbacher), who are all basically related, trying to do a fairly reasonable thing - have fun while making seriously good wine from just one vineyard site - Crowley Station Vineyards. We aren't too interested in bold manifestos or style declarations - our goal is to make wines that we like. We've found that the kind of wines we like, and thus the wines we make, are executed with a natural approach that allows the vineyard to do the talking. The Oregonian and SIP Northwest Magazine have called us “a rising star” and “best newcomer.” We think that's pretty cool, maybe you will too.
Regular Hours/Fees: Thursday - Sunday 11am to 5pm. By appointment on all other days. $15 tasting fee. Reservations for parties of 8 or more.

Balanced, textured, and redolent of place: these are qualities we’ve pursued in our winemaking since our first vintage in 2002. Working with seven organic and sustainable vineyards in the Willamette Valley, our wines ferment naturally to capture the nuances of the year, the vine and the land. Focusing on grape varieties with a legacy in the Willamette Valley - namely Pinot noir and Pinot blanc - we also seek to showcase the potential of emerging varieties like Melon de Bourgogne and Gamay. Situated on a crest of the Eola-Amity Hills AVA overlooking the Coastal Range, our friendly tasting room offers a range of current and older vintages, as well as light snacks. We look forward to welcoming you!

Helioterra Wines is a small, artisan producer of Northwest wines made at Björnson Vineyard in Salem, Oregon. Our wines are pretty, elegant and graceful in style. Winemaker Anne Ebenretier Hubatch partners with exceptional regional vineyard growers to craft wines that demonstrate the best that the Northwest offers. The name draws on geological inspirations, symbolizing Heliolite, the Oregon state gemstone (more commonly known as Sun Stone). Helio and Terra combine the Greek words for sun and earth, natural partners for grape growing.

For the past 26 years St. Innocent Winery has created distinctive, terroir driven wines from some of Oregon's best vineyards. Each site produces grapes reflective of their unique location and personality. Gentle handling, careful extraction and judicious use of oak are used to create wines with distinct textures, flavors, and aromas. Combined with balanced acidity, our wines are made to complement food and extend the pleasure of a meal.

Stangeland is a family name of our Norwegian mother and grandparents meaning “Strong Land.” Indeed our underlying base contains Columbia River basalt era strata. We have dry farmed this site since 1978 when 2.5 acres were planted to Pinot noir and Chardonnay with self-rooted vines. Pinot gris was added in 1986. Multiple awards from the US and Europe attest to our dedication to producing world-class wines. Please visit us on your tour.

Regular Hours/Fees: Tuesday - Sunday 11am to 5pm with a $5 tasting fee, refundable with purchase.

Witness Tree is a small producer of premium quality Pinot noir, Chardonnay, Pinot blanc, and Viognier made entirely from grapes grown on our 100-acre estate nestled in the Eola Hills of Oregon. As winegrowers, we believe that only by tending our own vines can we produce the finest wines. Low yields in the vineyard and minimal handling in the winery allow us to create wines of depth, elegance, concentration, and character; they are the ultimate expression of the earth from which they were born.

Violin Wine was started by Will Hamilton in 2013 to continue his passion for crafting Pinot noir of the highest integrity possible. Sourcing grapes from several dedicated growers in the Eola-Amity Hills in addition to two vineyards outside of the AVA enables the creation of both vineyard specific and blended wines, showcasing the potential of the Willamette Valley to produce classically styled, distinctive Pinot noir that supports cuisine, will age gracefully, and is supremely delicious to drink.

With muddy boots on our feet and world-class Pinot in our hands...

The grapes grown in the Eola-Amity Hills region aren’t just made into wine here; they are coveted and bought by award-winning winemakers all over the Northwest.

It’s not just the soil. It’s not even entirely about the expert growers.

It’s about the cool nights in the region, thanks to the ocean winds that blow in through the Van Duzer Corridor forcing the grapes to work harder. That means more concentration, more acidity, more balance—in short, it means Pinot noir that’s awfully hard to beat.
